Washington.—For several weeks there have been rumors that President Coolidge and the shipping board were again at odds. The differences now have come out into the open. Those interests which insist that the government shall go out of the shipping business have carried their case to the president and have won out. The announcement from Rapid City that Mr. Coolidge favors the sale of the merchant fleet has not come as a surprise but it does blast the hopes of those advocates of a government-owned merchant marine who believed that the profit made by the United States lines would be the basis for a policy of enlargement or replacement by the government of the existing fleet.

Mr. Coolidge's statement that the United States lines may have earned profits but not on the original investment of the ships at war time prices will provide considerable controversy because if the original capital investment is to be taken into consideration in determining a shipping policy then the shipping board will never be able to dispose of the merchant fleet. Private owners and operators have contended that the government should take a loss on the original capital investment and sell the ship at current prices for tonnage. The shipping board has figured its profit not on the basis of what the ships cost in war time but on the prices prevailing today, the inference being that the government is actually making a profit on these ships.

Just as would be the case if private owners bought the ships at a low cost today.

FAVORS EARLY SALE

The position of President Coolidge in favor of an early sale of the merchant fleet is thoroughly consistent with his previous expression on the subject but the shipping board has always taken refuge in the provisions of the Jones merchant marine act which have insisted that the purchasers must guarantee to keep the American flag on the routes chosen. Again, and again the shipping board has advertised its fleet for sale but the bids have not been sufficient, in the opinion of the board, to dispose of them.

For the last three months the chamber of commerce of the United States has been carrying on a campaign against the continued government ownership or operation of the merchant marine. The shipping board, on the other hand, has been pointing to the profits of the United States Lines and has indicated its desire for appropriations to build ships, especially cargo carriers, to replace those now wearing out. Some of the shipping men feel that the government should get out of the passenger and freight business and confine itself to regulation of rates and kindred matters of ocean transportation have conferred with the president and criticized the announcements from the shipping board and the merchant fleet corporation.

PRIVATE FIRMS INTERESTED

There have been rumors also that big financial interests have been waiting for the opportunity to buy the government ships at a public sale. The names of many prominent banking institutions have been mentioned as behind the plan. So long as no new ships are built, the opportunities of the merchant fleet to develop a more profitable business are limited, but this circumstance in turn is regarded by those who are trying to buy ships as inevitably compelling the government to sell the ships at a lower price.

Congress next December will have to decide the issue as between more appropriations for new ships or allowing the fleet to depreciate to the point where private interests will get the vessels at the price they think will permit them to operate at a profit.

WIFE WILL GET $650,000 FROM FILM COMEDIAN

Also Receives Custody of Children Under Out-of-court Agreement

Hall of Records, Los Angeles.—(P)—Lita Grey Chaplin was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Charles Spencer Chaplin after brief testimony in superior court here Monday to establish a routine charge of cruelty.

A settlement, reached out of court which was taken into consideration by Judge Walter Guerin during a ten minute recess, gave the wife $650,000 and custody of her two children. The decree followed a court drama lasting an hour during which the girl wife took the stand and told the court that her husband neglected and abused her. One year must elapse, under the law, before Mrs. Chaplin receives her final decree. The stipulation between attorneys setting out the important part of the settlement follows:

"An agreement has been made between Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin settling all property rights between them. Mrs. Chaplin is to be paid $625,000.

"This fully meets the requirements of the California laws, which in substance, provide that a wife is entitled to one-half the property acquired and moneys earned by the husband subsequent to the marriage.

"A trust fund of $200,000 dollars is to be paid to Mrs. Chaplin as legal guardian to the children for their support and maintenance, and education. The principal of the trust is to go to the children when the youngest reaches the age of 25 years.

It bore the signatures of seven attorneys.

ANNOUNCE SETTLEMENT

Edwin T. McMurray, counsel for Mrs. Chaplin, announced that the divorce suit was called for trial here that a settlement had been reached out of court concerning a division of property.

Mrs. Chaplin came into court ten minutes before the trial was scheduled to start. She looked just the same as many others in the crowded spectators section. A black silk dress and a big white choker which hid the lower part of her face, completed her garb.

Without announcing details of the settlement Mrs. Chaplin was called to the stand by McMurray and sworn. Prior to the announcement that a property settlement had been reached, Judge Walter Guerin told the attorneys that he would not permit testimony concerning charges of Mrs. Chaplin of even prior to marriage to be introduced in the Chaplin divorce trial.

CHAPLIN NOT PRESENT

The temporary ruling, issued just as the suit of Mrs. Chaplin was called, said the court would take the matter of admissibility of the testimony had been presented. Chaplin was not present when the divorce case was called.

Mrs. Chaplin testified that she separated from Chaplin Nov. 30, 1926. She declared she had been caused mental anguish by Chaplin prior to the time she left his home. His absence from home on many occasions and neglect to take her out caused her much distress.

Washington, D. C.—(P)—The navy will continue until Thursday its search in the Pacific ocean for the lost aviators, it was announced Monday.

BULLETIN
Washington, D. C.—(P)—A prediction that congress will enact a law to prohibit long distance airplane stunt flights, except under rigid conditions was made Monday by Admiral Eberle, acting secretary of the navy.

San Francisco.—(P)—The aviation world, its eyes held westward, with a heavy heart, Monday watched aircraft, naval vessels and merchant ships continue their intensive search in trackless wastes of the Pacific for seven fliers who flew down the airways from Oakland toward Honolulu last week and have not been heard from since.

Efforts of 58 naval vessels, aided by merchant craft steaming a course along the 2,400 mile great circle between San Francisco and Honolulu, after a six day great circle between San Francisco and Honolulu, after a six day search failed to reveal any trace of the three missing planes—the Miss Doran, the Golden Eagle and the Dallas Spirit.

STILL ARE HOPEFUL

Residents of Honolulu, mindful of the rescue of the late Commander John Rodgers, continued to express hope that the missing fliers would be found. Rodgers was found nine days after his airplane was forced down.

Unfrequented beaches on both the east and west shores of the Hawaiian islands, have failed to give any indication of airplanes or of their crews.

William Malloska, Michigan millionaire and backer of the flight of the Miss Doran, said he would not give up hope of finding the plane and its occupants until seven days had passed. He believes the plane and its occupants may still be found floating with the crew, Vilas Knoppe, Stevens, Point, Wis., and Augus Pedlar, and Miss Doran half-starved but unharmed.

BULLETIN
Boston.—Further legal doors were closed to counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti Monday when Justice Stone of the United States Supreme court, and Justice Sisk of the Massachusetts Superior court, refused petitions for a stay of execution. This left the matter apparently wholly in the hands of Governor Fuller, who had under consideration a petition for a further respite.

Defense counsel late Monday took to the state prison, for Sacco and Vanzetti to sign, a petition for a writ of habeas corpus which they wished to present to Judge Lowell of the federal district court before 5 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Boston.—(P)—Sacco and Vanzetti in their cells Monday stood pat on their refusal of religion. They had slept seemingly well and appeared fairly strong.

The counsel meanwhile covered a large section of the east with dramatic attempts to stave off the executions set for shortly after midnight, but failed in attempts to get intervention from Chief Justice Taft and Justice Stone of the United States Supreme court. There remained Governor Fuller who started his day in Boston silent as usual, and attempts for stay of execution in state courts.

Boston during the forenoon had no serious outbreaks of violence in demonstrations. Sacco and Vanzetti were in the middle of their fast. Sacco was in front of the state house. Reports from all over the world indicated that the day was passing gloriously elsewhere.

SACCO WRITES SON

A letter written by Sacco to "My dear son and companion" 14-year-old Dante, has been given out. He protested his weakness for the hour and said he would make his last wish known to his mother.

Vanzetti has appeared more distraught than Sacco during these last few hours. His sister, Luigia, had visited him several times since she arrived from Italy a few days ago asked that the public pray silently for two minutes this noon for her brother.

Once again at the state prison in Charlestown plans were being completed Monday for the act which was halted ten days ago by the governor's respite which was within an hour of the time appointed for its climax. For days extra guards have been on duty and streets in the vicinity have been closed to traffic. Monday morning found additional guards armed with riot guns, in position along the walls while further streets were blocked to all without a special pass.

The "zero hour" has arrived at the Seymour Fair. Gates were opened Monday for the forty-third annual Seymour Fair which will be held up to and including Thursday.

All is hustle and bustle Monday as exhibitors and concessionaires strove in a last-minute rush to get their exhibits in place for the opening. Secretary George F. Fiedler says all superintendents, exhibitors, and concessionaires had everything in readiness when the gates were opened.

A well-rounded fair in all departments is thrown open to the public. In fact, visitors are finding so many complete exhibits, that they constitute "fairs within a fair." POOR RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICTS BENEFIT FROM NEW AID LAW

New Legislation Provides Larger State Aid for Some Rural Districts

Several Outagamie-co school districts will be benefited by the new state law readjusting financial aid of the state to common schools. A. G. Meisinger, county superintendent of schools said Friday.

Whereas there are many school districts in the county that now receive only from $50 to $125 state aid, the new bill will give each district $250 for each elementary teacher employed on March 1, 1927. A similar amount to be paid out of a tax levied for the purpose by the county brings the total to $500 per teacher.

In cases where the property valuation of the school district falls below $250,000, the sum is increased to $500 per teacher.

The new school aid equalizing law will help the poorer district cut taxes but will place a heavier tax burden on the wealthier districts as there are several districts that have been receiving more than $500 in state school aid.

Under the new law, state aid will be distributed in accordance with the needs, overcoming the handicap of low tax assessment valuations, so as to give children in elementary schools of poorer districts educational opportunities equivalent to those offered in more wealthy districts he pointed out.

Distribution of the school fund under the new law will continue on the basis of the number of persons between the ages of 4 and 20 years residing in the district but the seven-tenths mill tax is raised to one and one-tenth mills. This change is expected to produce $2,000,000 additional revenue.

WEALTH VARIES WIDELY

A study made by the state department of public instruction in 1924 revealed that the range of valuation in districts having the same number of children to educate varied from $38,370 to $75,000 per district and the wealth per person on census varied from $1,163 to $2,615.

It was further shown that this situation was not confined to any particular section of the state nor to rural districts but was equally true of city districts.

Special aids to rural schools have been repeated as the new method will fully compensate low-valuation localities.

The law becomes effective January 1, 1928, which places this year's distribution of state school money under the old method.

EVOLUTION OF PORCH PUZZLES COMMITTEES

What is a porch? Can it evolve, by several stages into a room and become a part of the dwelling proper? Questions like these are puzzling the ordinance committee of the common council, which was instructed at a recent meeting of the council to draft an ordinance safeguarding the present set-back line of 20 feet from the sidewalk.

Under the present ordinance the set-back line is 20 feet from the house itself, but this regulation permits building of a 10-foot porch. Attention of the council recently was called to the fact that a building permit may be granted for a 10-foot porch. This may be enclosed by glass windows. Later, under the plea of repairs, the owner may board up the sides of the porch, to all appearances making it a room. At least, this has been done in one or two instances. No permit is required for repairs.

Until a new ordinance is submitted to the common council, John Wieland, building inspector, is refusing to grant permits for porches outside.

APPLETON RESIDENTS IN EXTENSION WORK

Proof that Appleton residents believe in taking advantage of every opportunity to further their education is contained in a report of the local district office of the University of Wisconsin Extension division for the last year. Appleton ranks second to Green Bay in the number of students studying with the division and is far ahead of that city when population and employment figures are considered.

Green Bay had 233 students in extension courses during the year and Appleton had 250, while the former city has twice the population of Appleton. Besides, Green Bay employs many more workers. Appleton has a senior high school and college which also take many students while Green Bay has two senior high schools. Wausau, division seat of the former Wausau district, had only 102 pupils the last year. It became a part of the local district when the two sections were combined.

NEW PHONE BOOTH PUT IN CITY HALL LOBBY

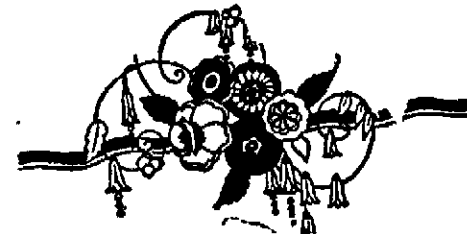

Employees of the Wisconsin Telephone company have installed a telephone booth in the lobby of the city hall building. Frequent requests of people that they be allowed to use the telephones in the library on the first floor have caused a great deal of inconvenience to the librarians and in many cases people have gone to the city offices on the second floor of the building to request the use of telephones there. The pay booth is expected to lessen the number of requests for use of the private telephones in offices of the building.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the worth of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If this medicine has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you? At your druggist's.

A THOUGHTLESS taunt of a playmate at school may spell a childhood tragedy for your boy or girl.

All children are sensitive. If other children are dressed more neatly than they, they lose their self confidence. Which is not so different from their fathers and mothers!

A stained dress, a torn coat or a wrinkled, crumpled suit may cause your child to keep in the background. A careful dry cleaning, repairing and pressing may change his whole attitude toward life. You will be surprised at what we can do to a coat or dress that looks ready for the discard. We fix the linings, the pockets, replace lost buttons, sew up rips, remove stains and dirt, and press the garments back to their original shape. You can save money, too, by sending the children's last year's garments here. Phone 259.

CITY POPULATION ON SIGNBOARDS TO BE CHANGED, HINT

Highway Signs on Outskirts of Appleton Fall Short of Reality

Following the lead of the Manitowoc Kiwanis club, Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, will write to the state highway commission to see if a change cannot be made in the population figures stated on the highway signs at the outskirts of the city. The Manitowoc club felt that it was an injustice to the city to allow the figures to stand at 17,800 when the city had a population of 22,200 and as a result of its protest the commission has promised to change the figures.

Appleton's figures are given as 19,561, on the signs but the population is said to be more than 22,000. The signs give the federal census of 1920. Citizens of Manitowoc thought that to wait until the 1930 federal census to raise the figures would be an injustice as that city had long ago passed the 17,800 mark.

Last year, according to Mr. Corbett, several cities including Appleton, took the matter up with the state commission. Madison was the loudest protester. The commission at that time refused to change the signs until another federal census, saying that only the federal census was correct, the others being merely "guesses." The commission often gave the city at least 1,000 more people than it really had, probably because of "elvic pride," the commission contended. In fact every time a correct federal census was made, the city's own census made between the ten-year period, had to be lowered at least 1,000 by the government. Since last year a new commission has been appointed, and with the promise to Manitowoc, other cities see a chance to have the figures more nearly correct for the benefit of visitors to the city.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Vilak passed an instant while the droning of the priests took on a sharp, angry note. "The rest you can probably guess. The night when we came to town Prentiss of an attack, he hurried out to put the baby down into a stony part of the cellar where it would be absolutely safe from chance bullets. Then when I announced my plan to find the fazenda, he realized of course that it would be drowned where it was, and went out to bring it to the tower."

"It was then that D'Albentara and a few of his men who were able to reach the house before the water struck them, caught him, having first killed the dog which was carried off by the torrent. His captors started off with him toward the jungle. But they had been on the way only a day when the baby who had been sickly ever since its first terrible journey, died. This was a contingency on which D'Albentara hadn't reckoned."

"I'm beginning to understand," Elise said. "That's why Tinky disappeared, isn't it?"

"Yes. Up to this time, you hadn't entered his affairs, except for him to steal your rifles which he needed badly and to send you a note or two warning you not to try to help Prentiss. I really think he liked you very much. But seeing all his hopes of gaining part of the vast gold supply of Batalegos going glimmering unless he brought back a live baby for the sacrifice, he naturally thought of Tinky, whom chance had thrown in his way when he found it along the road."

"I am quite sure he wouldn't have done this unless he were fairly desperate. But after you stop to consider a moment, it doesn't seem such a desperate undertaking at that. The dead baby was approximately Tinky's age and size, and being light-skinned and of very fine aborigine stock, was in general appearance not unlike Tinky, who is, of course, pronouncedly dark. Besides, he could explain away any discrepancies by declaring them the work of time and travel. Though it was unlikely that he would have to do any explaining, for though Batalegos, and the priests who were his friends undoubtedly knew the difference, the general public wouldn't be permitted to know. So he had the child stolen in the same fashion as the guns. For obvious reasons, Tinky was well taken care of on his trip and so didn't suffer the ill effects the other poor youngster did."

The angry chant became a dance. The priests began to leap up and down, shaking great gourds rattles. "How did he... er... steal him and the guns?" the old man asked. "There were no footprints."

"Merely by getting some of his men who were expert tree-climbers like those chaps we saw back in the jungle. If you remember there were trees by the shed where the guns were kept and trees shading the spot where Tinky was lying. They merely followed along the strip of woods which led to the road, let themselves down by vines or leather ropes which some of these Indians are expert in handling, and with their burdens returned the same way. I felt fairly sure it was this when I found a bit of leaf on the floor of the shed which showed bruised marks as though a rope or vine had cut forcibly against it."

"I... er... see that now. But why were all those... er... Italians... and that Englishman, killed in that dreadful way. And how?"

"Tony's death was accidental. He got something which was intended for Prentiss. The other three were put out of the way because after Pasquale and Detto heard of the gold through the tortured Indian, they set out to get it. All of them, were killed in a manner. Nanny, which you as a chemist should feel somewhat ashamed of yourself, for not recognizing it sooner. It was curari."

Elise helped the child to crawl onto her khaki-clad knee. "What's curari?" she asked.

"A vegetable poison which occurs sporadically all over South America. Some natives use it to tip their blow-pipe darts in hunting."

"The old man looked sheepish. 'I am... er... ashamed of myself,' he stammered. 'Should have recognized it at once... yes... er... at once. Only poison of its kind in existence. Paralyzes all the muscles... yes... muscles... yet at the same time has no effect... So... er... tortured person can feel all pain acutely... er... acutely... and yet cannot move to get away. Ashamed of myself... Quite ashamed. How did the curari get into their blood?'"

"Thorns. There were a number of thorns in that thicket at the entrance to Prentiss' fazenda where Tony was killed which were smeared with it. They had been prepared this way on the chance that Prentiss would strike against them. But it happened to be Tony instead who brushed against them when Limy struck him and he fell. That's the way some of the natives were killed, too. Lucky for Prentiss that he went to town as seldom as he did. That's why I made you wear a rain-coat as a slight protection, for I imagined that there was something of the sort, though I didn't know just what, and that's why I burned the thicket. The fingers of the idol are coated with the same poison. And so are the little points on D'Albentara's ring when you press a spring and release them. Which,

of course, makes it a fearfully dangerous weapon."

The dance of the priests ceased. The worshippers began slowly drifting out of the courtyard. Prentiss stirred uneasily in his sleep.

It began to grow cool. The old man moved closer to the fire. "Er... Prentiss couldn't have told you all this. You must have known... er... much of it long before. Or you did... How did you learn it? It's quite beyond me."

"Nothing miraculous in the slightest. Merely a simple bit of addition, using facts instead of numbers, and after that a bit of very ordinary reasoning. I got my first hint from the high collar Prentiss always wore. Man doesn't wear such a collar in hot climate like that of Porto Verde without a distinct reason."

"On the single occasion that he came to the barber's shop to be shaved—incidentally that collar was one of reasons for my adopting the role of a servant. I noticed that he refused to take it off, and of course I took pains to find out why. I saw the tattooed circle around it, and observed how his neck twitched nervously whenever I brought the razor near. So I felt sure that the unusual sensitiveness arose because the nerves had suffered some distinct shock and the collar was thus an unconscious gesture of protection as well as a means to hide the tattooing."

"If a man had escaped from hanging after the rope had been placed round his neck he'd probably feel the same way. Then later, when I went out to his fazenda and tripped him up with a vine, I found that the bottle he was bringing from the tower where he kept his perishable kitchen supplies contained milk. This, coupled with the cries, caused me to suspect the presence of a child."

"On top of this, were the facts of the stone lamps burning outside his gate, an obvious symbol, probably intended to give protection, the bits of bone chopped in ritualistic fashion which I found in the fire, and the ring which clearly showed signs of some degenerate form of nature worship. So when Tinky's last kidnapping occurred the story in between wasn't hard to imagine."

The court was now deserted, except for four soldiers, humbly waiting to take them off to the chief's apartment.

for the night. Vilak stretched his long gaunt arms, and yawned.

"I don't know what anybody else is going to do, but I, personally, am going to bed. I'm pretty well worn out, and we've two or three busy days ahead getting ready to make a trek back to civilization. Prentiss tells me there's a way across the desert and mountains of Peru that's very quick and very easy once you know it, particularly if Batalegos helps. Which you can be assured I'll take care he will. You see, we've practically crossed Brazil, and in two weeks of good healthy traveling we'll be in Cuzco. From there we can get a train to the coast, and then take a steamer to anywhere."

Elise glanced at him and shook her head in mock resignation.

"You're too clever," she said. "Much, much too clever to be tolerated. But I can't help being terribly grateful to you, and more than that, being awfully fond of you. I don't know what I'm going to do about it. He yawned again, then rose to his feet, and surveyed her quizzically. 'Am I to consider that remark as cousinly, esteemed relative, or as rather in the nature of... a proposal?' She started to make an indignant reply, then checked herself, and smiled. 'Take it anyway you like,' she answered slowly."

He took a placid puff of his cigarette. "Thanks," he said suavely. "You saved me a lot of trouble. I had just decided to do it myself."

INTERNATIONAL "Y" PROBLEMS BROUGHT TO STATE MEETING

Convention at Milwaukee Aug. 29 to Act on Financial Questions

Milwaukee—(AP)—Membership and financial problems of the Young Men's Christian Association will be discussed by the organization's "service men's club" when the sixth annual international convention of the Y. M. C. A. opens here August 29.

Composed of lay members of the association, the club has 150 branches and one delegate from each club will attend the Milwaukee convention. It is considered the service branch of the international association, in that members are active in membership and financial campaigns as well as other tasks confronting the Y. M. C. A.

Starting Monday morning, August 29 the convention will last through Thursday, September 1 with a special program arranged for visiting women.

SEEKING SUPPORT

New ideals in membership and increased support of the physical education departments of the various associations will be among the topics brought before the group during the course of the convention. International expansion, one of the projects of the clubs, also will be discussed.

Committee reports and appointment of new committees will take place the opening day, together with discussion on current problems. Following a smoker and an Indian ceremonial in that evening, with Chippewa Indians participating in ancient dances, Dr. C. C. Schneider, Milwaukee, international president of the clubs, will deliver an address, the keynote address of the convention.

Boy's work will come up for discussion on Tuesday. P. B. Williams, Toledo, O., will set forth problems besetting the Y. M. C. A. and an exposition of the Y motto will be given by the Rev. Paul Graham, of the Ohio district.

Led by Huron Smith, Milwaukee, the delegates will be taken on a tour of a local museum showing Indian life and customs in the country centuries ago. At a banquet in the evening, Harry Ballantyne, Toronto, Canada, member of the national council, will speak.

REVIEW EXPANSION

Foreign work will come up for discussion on Wednesday when representatives from various old world clubs review recent expansion work. John Moss, Milwaukee, immediate past president, Kiwanis International, will be the principal speaker at a banquet in the evening.

On Thursday, the closing day, compressed reports, meetings and business sessions at which election of officers will take place, will take up the greater part of the final session. A tour of the Wisconsin lake country will start in the afternoon for those who are able to go. There will be a picnic at Lake Amy Belle in the evening.

Although delegates to the convention are elected by each member club on the basis of size of the clubs, not more than one or two will be eligible to send more than one delegate. Through limitation of the delegates, more work can be accomplished, directors of the association believe.

Tablets found in ancient Babylonia and Assyria show that banking transactions were carried on 5,000 years ago. Checks and notes were made of day, which were then baked.

THE AIR MAIL

Of all the aeronautical developments of the past few years perhaps few have had the practical value or elicited greater public interest and approval than the air mail service which is proving its value and reliability day after day and night after night. It has proven to be a dependable and efficient service of the utmost value to a larger number than it was first thought would ever use it.

As a testimonial to the efficiency of the air mail service, the figures for the business handled by the twelve contract air routes showed an increase of 16.3 per cent from May to July of this year. Ten of the routes handled more than 1,000 pounds of mail each during July, while the total for the twelve was 53,521. As each new route is established and the public learns how to use it to the best advantage, the volume of mail rapidly increases to the point where private companies are willing to take the route over on a contract basis and assume the risks of management. Thus the federal government merely pioneers each new route, working all the time for a real network of air mail lanes that will enormously expedite the movement of mails throughout the United States.

Just recently another interesting and important step was taken to speed trans-Atlantic mail when Clarence D. Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flier, took off of the Leviathan at sea and flew to land in a test. Now the navy is experimenting with dropping mail on the Leviathan's deck after the latter is over 300 miles at sea, the result being a saving of nearly two days in the forwarding of trans-Atlantic mails.

This is an age of quick communication, and in the furthering of that trend the air mail is helping vitally toward a state of maximum efficiency.

FEEBLE-MINDED CHILDREN

That thousands of feeble-minded children are "wasted" each year is the rather startling statement made by Dr. Neil A. Dayton, director of the division of mental deficiency in the Massachusetts state department of mental diseases, after an intensive survey of the conditions in his own state. It provided the first successful attempt of a state to round up its entire new generation of feeble-minded children in order to develop them into useful citizens.

Dr. Dayton reported that 14 psychiatric clinics travel about the state and examine annually 4700 children who are retarded three or more years in school. Dr. Dayton contends that it is not an individual's intelligence but his character and personality that determine whether he will make a useful, contented member of a community and that persistence, manual skill, honesty and normal conduct can be trained in the great majority of the feeble-minded.

The attempt of Massachusetts to look into the feeble-minded children situation was begun in 1921 and 6,000 feeble-minded children are now receiving training in special classes. Since the inception of the plan hundreds of children have been started along mental development that will make useful citizens of them. A few years ago no such thing would have been attempted. The children would merely have been classified as "dumb" or "stupid" and that would have been all there was to it. Today, however, the cry is to avoid waste and that applies to human material as well as to inanimate material. Nothing is so pitiful as a child growing up wild and untrained because it is slightly subnormal, when, with proper care and training, a finer future could be assured for it.

DON'T LAUGH IN OCEAN GROVE

Ocean Grove is a New Jersey beach resort peopled by some 40,000 residents during the summer months. It is in the north temperate zone, but there's something about the air there that isn't temperate at all—it's positively bad.

For instance, there was a well-defined rumor going the rounds the other day to the effect that a bather had donned his swimming clothes, put on his street suit over them and gone to the beach where he disrobed without even going first to a bathhouse. Modesty must have wept for this!

An iceman appeared on the streets there one day without an outer shirt. He had on one of those barbarous "sweat shirts" which most likely the devil personally prompted some idle hands to invent. Well, the law caught him, all right!

Ocean Grove, New Jersey, is a place where messenger boys have to push their bicycles through the streets on Sundays. To ride them would be in Ocean Grove an offense comparable to stabbing the mayor in Chicago. And as for riding in automobiles on Sunday—well, just as sure as you do Satan will bob right up out of the back seat somewhere and tote you away.

Ocean Grove! Saddled by a charter decades old, and ages behind the times. But more important than the charter is the camp meeting group that rules under this yellowed document. Can't it be shown to them somehow that charity is one of the real essentials of Christianity? Can't it be shown that intolerance kills itself with its own poison?

If it can't, let us weep for Ocean Grove. And hope that nobody slips on a banana peel there on Sunday. Such a breach of moral tone might give somebody a laugh.

A NEW CHAMPION

The United States has a new champion in the person of J. T. Shatterji, one of the leaders of the Federation of Asiatic Culture with headquarters in Calcutta and a life member of Trinity College in Cambridge. He has studied all the philosophers and has perused the culture of many lands and he has come to the conclusion that this country is maligned. The United States is not materialistic and crude as reported. To be sure there may be a few such persons, as there are in every nation.

During a visit to this country to do some research work at the University of Chicago he met some rare spirits, men of business leadership who yet have high spiritual comprehension. In fact, he thinks that Americans are seeking the finer things of the spirit more than many other peoples because they are growing weary of big business, rush, bustle and the omnipotence of machinery.

It is gratifying to occasionally have a visitor who is not looking for, and finding, our worst and tagging us all with the same label.

EDISON BECOMES A BURBANK

Word that Thomas A. Edison is to take up the quest of a rubber plant which can be grown in the United States and so give this country a rubber supply to make it independent of foreign rubber growing monopolies may strike many people as strange. For Edison is primarily a physicist—an experimenter with material forces rather than with plant life.

Edison as a Burbank creating a new plant is not, however, such a far-fetched conception as it might seem at first glance. Edison's success has been principally due to his painstaking laboratory work. In developing his lamp filaments, he tried every sort of metal and fiber that could be found or manufactured. In perfecting his storage battery, he used the same method—constant painstaking trial after trial—and by the process of elimination achieved his desired results.

It is just such method that will bring success in the search for a temperate zone rubber plant.

OLD MASTERS

There lived a sage in days of yore,
And he a handsome pigtail wore;
But wondered much, and pondered more,
Because it hung behind him.
He mused upon this curious case,
And swore he'd change the pigtail's place,
And have it hanging in his hair,
Not dangling there behind him.
And though his efforts never slack,
And though he toiled and toiled and tacked,
Alas! still faithful to his task,
The pigtail danced behind him.

IS THIS LIKE YOUR TROUBLE?

There are going to be no symptoms in this article, so if that is what you are looking for you may as well stop here and try some other column. Still, I have no intention to mislead when I ask whether this is like your trouble. Mr. Ruskin had no such intention when he wrote his "Notes on the Construction of Sleeps," which dealt, so my literary adviser tells me, with the building up of Sunday school classes or something like that, but the ranchman who sent to Sears Roebuck for a copy felt pretty sure about it. You remember, of course, about the old hermit who sighed and said oh, yes, life had brought many troubles and misfortunes though most of them had never happened.

correspondent remarks that it is "quite a relief to know that the nose does not absorb anything." I am uncertain whether the correspondent is serious or not. But no matter. It should be quite a relief to know that if one has harbored the fear or suspicion or conviction that the pores do or may absorb poisons, for instance, though I suppose it wouldn't be so pleasant to gain this knowledge if one has cherished a fancy that some kind of salve or "cream" is absorbed through the skin in certain circumstances when applied as directed by the cosmetic nostrum vendor or by the phony beauty specialist.

Take a painter or a printer or any other artisan whose skin necessarily comes in contact with lead, arsenic, cyanide, benzol, ethyl lead, banana oil, anilin, antimony, carbon bisulphide, wood alcohol, nitroglycerin, phosphorus, turpentine, etc., and it should be a comfort to him to know that, whatever risks of occupational poisoning he may encounter, he can't get the poison into his system through the skin. If he is to develop chronic poisoning he must inhale the poison in vapor, fumes or dust, or he must swallow the poison in food or water or from his own fingers, or he must have cut, blistered or raw surfaces if he is to absorb any of the poison through the skin. Yes, I am aware that some old time doctors and health authorities assumed that certain poisons, say anilin oil, benzol, nitroglycerin, were actually absorbed through the unbroken skin if accidentally spilled on the worker's clothing, for example. But they were just guessing, and they are still guessing about that. Many actual scientific tests have pretty conclusively proved that no such chemical is absorbed through the skin—the subject of the experiment suffers no appreciable effect if the air he breathes is free from the volatile or vaporized poison. Of course you can administer chloroform or any other volatile drug, chemical or poison, by spilling or pouring it upon the subject's clothing and keeping the subject confined where the air he breathes will be well saturated.

Aside from the inevitable good that must come from the teaching of the truth instead of fancy or erratic theory, I am glad to learn that the correspondent finds this knowledge a relief. Most of the evils we conjure up never happen, after all. In similar fashion an occasional letter tells me how much more cheerful the correspondent's outlook upon life is since he has learned that one can never "take cold" from a wetter, wet feet, exposure and the like. To be sure, the mere physical discomforts of severe exposure are enough without any worrying about fancied dire consequences that in fact never happen.

I think I am an optimist. Without calling unpleasant names, what do you think?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mistakes Will Happen

Although I strive never to aid or abet any p. p. lady in the crazy attempt to reduce, in the course of the daily routine now and then some pleasingly plump one gets by the guard and receives reduction advice which she ought not to heed. Such a lady, in Georgia, took advantage of my thoughtlessness and managed to shrink herself from 158 pounds, a very good weight for 68 inches of lady, to 134 pounds, a truly frightful figure. I wot. Now this sad wreck of what was formerly an attractive, wholesome, happy woman threatens to sue me for alienating her husband's affections. The moral in this for me, is to tighten up on reduction advice, advice I have never given without discrimination. The moral for any nice plump girls who may cast an eye over this item is, if you've got your man or even an option on one, stay as you are.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Monday, Aug. 25, 1902

The marriage of Miss Ella Estey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Estey, to Arthur Baetz of Two Rivers, was to take place at 8 o'clock on Sept. 2 at the Congregational church.
A son was born the previous night to the Rev. and Mrs. Ray C. Barker.
Miss Mae Featherston and Josephine Patten left that day for Oshkosh to attend the Normal school the following year.
Herman Rhode, an employee of the Riverside Fibre and Paper Co. who lived at 731 Main-st., was badly burned by steam the previous Saturday afternoon. Mr. Rhode climbed to the top of the boiler to turn the steam on and while doing this the pipe gave way. The steam struck him with great force in the face and chest knocking him to the floor, a distance of 10 feet.

Papermakers of the city were to have a picnic at Forest park on Labor day. Congressman E. S. Minor was to give the address. The celebration was to close with a dance at the armory in the evening. The Amphion band of Neenah was to furnish music for the picnic.

TEN YEARS AGO
Monday, Aug. 20, 1917

The 10-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. De Witt of Kimberly was drowned at 2 o'clock that afternoon when he fell off the north end of the bridge crossing the river in that village.
Two steamers and ten smaller vessels docked at the foot of Congress-st. Brooklyn, were seriously damaged by fire caused by spontaneous combustion early that day. The damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000.
H. A. Schmitz and Morris Heineman left the previous Friday for St. Louis, Mo., where they were to attend the national convention of the German Catholic Central societies which opened the previous Saturday morning.

A. R. Eds, manager of the Woolworth five and ten cent store, returned the previous day from Duluth where he attended a conference of Woolworth store managers from the Duluth district which included parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.
Mrs. Paul Ankham, 1225 Carver-st., was surprised by a group of friends the previous night in honor of her birthday anniversary.

Marriage licenses were issued to Charles Rohm of Osborne, and Mrs. Johanna Kroil of Appleton; Theodore Lamers and Hattie Helmas of Little Chute.

Postmaster and Mrs. Gustave Keller were among the several thousand persons who witnessed the dedication of the new Francis Boyle hall at St. Norbert college, De Pere the previous afternoon.

Writers are discussing various jobs for Coolidge after his term ends. It is unbelieveably reported that several movie firms have offered him handsome contracts to play westerns.
The old-fashioned winter went away when the ladies began to ignore it.

Rushing the Season

Tests Show Large Doses Alcohol Injure Health

Alcohol in small doses may or may not be harmful, but in large doses it is positively harmful.

This is the conclusion of the world's leading medical authorities.

Surveys all that science knows about alcoholic effects on the human system. Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and special health writer for the Appleton Post-Crescent, and Albert Edward Wiggam, one of the country's greatest biologists and author of "The Fruit of the Family Tree," "The New Decalogue of Science," and other works, have contributed their findings to the current issue of Collier's magazine.

"One of the most elaborate and careful experiments was conducted by Drs. Raymond Dodge and Francis G. Benedict in the nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie Institution at Boston, under a grant by the Carnegie Institution of Washington," says the Fishbein-Wiggam report. "Dr. Dodge is a distinguished psychologist, and Dr. Benedict is a physiological chemist of high repute."

13 EXPERIMENTERS
These experimenters used thirteen young men throughout most of the experiments, most of them college graduates. Most of the young men were moderate users, but three of them were persons under treatment by the Psychopathic Hospital at Boston for excessive alcoholism. No total abstainers were used.

"The subjects were given two types of doses on different days. Dose A contained thirty cubic centimeters of pure alcohol and dose B 45 cubic centimeters of pure alcohol.

"A dose of 30 cubic centimeters of pure alcohol is about what one would get from 2 ounces of a good grade of whisky. If mixed with beer, it would make very close to a quart of 2.75 per cent beer. This is about as close as we can come to translating the exact doses into the popular forms of drinking alcohol.

"Both on the alcohol and the non-alcohol days, after the subject had taken the dose, the experimenters by very refined devices studied the effect upon the body and mental processes.

SLOWER REFLEX
"The most marked effect was on the knee jerk, which was relayed by the alcohol an average of 10 per cent, and the average extent of the muscle thickening was reduced 46 per cent. The second largest effect was on the eye-lid reflex or eye wink, which was reduced in speed 7 per cent and decreased in extent of the muscle movements 19 per cent. The larger dose constantly showed greater effect than the smaller one."

"From a scientific standpoint Drs. Dodge and Benedict emphasize the importance of the effect of alcohol upon the eye movements, and say: "In every respect we believe that the eye movements are the most reliable and most important measures of the group. They are least open to arbitrary modification, vary directly with the dose of alcohol, come closest to the total average of all the tests, cover the most general characteristics, and come closest to being a true test of the individual's susceptibility to the effect of alcohol."

EMPHATIC EFFICIENCY
"Another eminent psychologist, Dr. Walter R. Miles, carried out 160 experiments on several groups of young men to determine the effect of alcohol on human efficiency.

"Of these experiments 160 were with alcohol and 66 were made on control days when the subject did not know that he did not receive alcohol. His dose A ranged from 21 to 23 grams and dose B from 32 to 42 grams. This would be, for dose A, roughly a 12-ounce bottle of 2.75 beer for the smaller men and a full quart for the bigger men. Dose B was about 50 per cent greater than dose A. These doses applied to the main body of his experiment.

"Perhaps Dr. Miles' most interesting results were those on typewriting. In order to avoid the effects of improvement by practice, he used only highly trained typists who had probably reached about their limit of speed and accuracy. These men undertook three tests each day.

GAVE THREE TESTS
"The first was typing the traditional practice sentence. 'Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.'"

"The second test was to copy 25 lines of rather difficult new prose. "The third test was a copy of 10 lines of nonsense syllables of five letters each. Samples of these are as follows: yhsrn, vbyli, chomn, hzry, and so forth. They were instructed to write 'accurately and as fast as possible.' Here are the results:

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York. — This is the season when chorine fales are settled on Broadway.
In those brief weeks when humbly hugs the Manhattan highway all the thousands of damsels who expect face and figure to carry them to fame and fortune run the gamut of hope and despair.

From all the big producing offices the "call" goes out. A call means simply that Mr. White, Mr. Ziegfeld, Mr. Buck or some other big league producer of musical shows is ready to look over candidates for the chorus.

All the hopes all the ambitions, all the dreams, heartaches, yearnings of a year, are suddenly crystallized in the darkened bareness of an empty theater. Out of thousands, 20 or 30 will survive. In a brief hour this vast pageant of beauty and grace will be divided into those who may enter the big league and those who will have to take the Broadway crumbs.

Day after day the drama goes on now in this theater, now in that.

Here is a typical "call" — 50 girls are crashing a theater gate — the doors are not yet open — the young and inexperienced have been there for hours — the older and harder boiled come swinging jauntily up at the eleventh hour — all lose confidence as the crowd grows — the old-timers know what this means — the greater the number the greater the competition and this is a case of survival — they push and crush and crowd the sidewalk — police come up and keep them in order — and finally they enter.

They say that men whistle in graveyards at night to keep up their courage. Chorines hum songs, pretend to do little dance steps, and give other indications of bravado. But no the youngsters. They make no pretensions. This is the terrible, the fatal hour that strikes. They have come from a dozen small towns scattered over the map to crash New York. They have struggled to eat, have taken odd jobs, have danced around cafes, have taken places in cheap class shows — just to hang on for the "big chance." Here it is and they're afraid.

And it all happens so quickly. No two producers use the same method of selection. But they all work fast. They have to; there are so many girls to look at.

George White forms them in a circle on the stage and passes his eye around the circle. Ziegfeld sits in a front seat, wearing a pair of high powered glasses, and lines them in rows of 20. Gene Duck has them pass in review, as it were, in groups of ten or more, and go back and forth across stage. And so it goes.

One, two, three — and out. Just like that! A snap of the finger and it's all over. This one is chosen and an entire 100 are out. Oh, well, there's plenty of company for the misery!

They walk out in the street, the jaunty pretension returning when the eyes of the crowd outside are encountered.

Two Floors of Good Things to Wear

LOSS OF WEALTH DID NOT SHATTER POWER OF ARMOUR

Meat Packer Lost $1,000,000 a Day During Great Cattle Slump

Chicago—Many stories have been written telling how to make a million dollars.

Here's one that tells you how to lose a million.

Perhaps nobody wants to. Still—

When the average American, to whom $5,000 looks like all the money in the world, reads of some rich man who has dissipated a fortune of $10,000,000 or so, he is apt to lay his paper down and say:

"When a man gets hold of that much money, why in thunder can't he hold on to it?"

EASY TO LOSE

Money is easy to lose. To learn how it's done, just study the life story of the late J. Ogden Armour, Chicago meat packer, who died in London the other day after seeing one of the largest fortunes in the world dwindle down to a fraction of its former size.

Armour's wealth was once stupendous. He had properties valued at no one knows how much over $100,000,000. And it went. All but a small fraction.

J. Ogden Armour entered the financial world in 1881, leaving Yale university to enter his father's meat packing business. A youngster fresh from college, he applied himself to the job of making the Armour fortune one of the largest on earth.

He succeeded admirably. The great Armour packing house grew larger and larger. It became an international institution. Annually it did more than $100,000,000 worth of business.

FIRM EXPANDED

Armour was not satisfied with activities in one field. In the late 'nineties the Armour family had established a brokerage concern to deal in futures on the Chicago wheat market.

Armour became a skilled market manipulator. He became the largest owner of bank stocks in Chicago. His father had bequeathed him an interest in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway; Armour added to this, at one time owning 150,000 shares of that road's stock.

And still he continued expanding. He and E. H. Harriman formed a $50,000,000 stock company to finance a subway freight system for Chicago.

The Kansas City Railway and Light Co. passed to Armour's control. He became director of many banks and other financial institutions.

Then came the outbreak of the World War.

MORE PROSPERITY

Europe had not been a very good market for American meat products. But under war-time conditions it did an about-face and began to buy all the American meat it could get. Armour profited enormously. His packing company, still the mainstay of his far-flung financial kingdom, expanded and expanded. It was as if fortune had gone out of her way to make things especially pleasant for meat packers.

The armistice came. Nothing happened for a while. Then Europe began to buy less American meat, as Europe's purchasing power went down and the disappearance of submarines made Australian and Argentine beef cheaper once more. Prices began to drop.

In the United States business began to slacken. The unheard of prosperity that had caused so many business men to think a trifle too highly of themselves changed color and became somewhat pallid. There were even symptoms of a "buyers' strike"—which is a way of describing what happens when people find the prevailing prices too high for their purses.

ARMOUR DESPERATELY

Armour, caught with tremendous stores of meat on hand, fought desperately—so desperately that the Federal Trade Commission began to evince considerable interest in the way the price of meat refused to come down. But sooner or later the break had to come. It came, and the good old days were over.

Just how much Armour lost probably will never be known. At one time, over a period of four months, he lost $1,000,000 a day. He narrowly escaped a complete smash.

A $20,000,000 loan tied him over one bad period; then he had to sell all his bank stocks to meet that loan. The bankers reorganized his packing company. The Kansas City Railway and Light Company nearly went bankrupt, and Armour himself suffered heavily.

Prosperity had deserted the northwest completely—and the northwest was the territory served by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The road went into the hands of a receiver, and Armour took no one knows how big a loss. His Chicago freight subway project collapsed utterly. Armour had to sell his magnificent $5,000,000 country estate on the lake shore north of Chicago.

DID NOT DIE POOR

Then, to top the climax, his $200,000 wheat trading organization took a dive. Early this year its complete withdrawal from the grain trade was announced.

To be sure, as stated before, Armour did not die a poor man—not by any standard. Many a multi-millionaire would be glad to exchange his own fortune for the estate Armour left.

Yet, compared with what it was seven or eight years ago, the Armour fortune has shrunk amazingly. It is no longer one of the great fortunes of America. Ogden Armour made a great deal of money, but he lost a great deal.

And, out of that fact, the great American citizen, saving money by painful stages to make a down payment on a $10,000 home, may get what comfort he can.

This Article Tells How To Build Wings, Assemble Two Motor Model Airplane

Editors Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles telling boys of Appleton how to build model airplanes. The sixth article described the construction of the fuselage and motors of this twin-motored pusher model. The information in these articles was supplied by the Playground and Recreation Association of America, which is sponsoring a national miniature aircraft tournament.

Today we finish the construction of this class twin-motored model. If you followed the instructions yesterday, you have the fuselage of the plane built and the two propellers attached.

Now to build the wings, the elevator and assemble the plane.

The following material is needed:

Wing: Two pieces bamboo 2 1/2" x 1 1/2" x 1 1/2" for edges. Nine pieces bamboo 4" x 1 1/2" x 3/4" for ribs. One piece bamboo 7" x 1 1/2" x 1/4" for ends.

Elevator: One piece bamboo 5" x 1 1/2" x 1 1/2" for front edge. One piece bamboo 18" x 1 1/2" x 1 1/2" for rear edge and ends. Five pieces bamboo 3" x 1 1/2" x 3/4" for ribs.

General: One-fourth yard x 1 yard sheet of Japanese tissue paper, for covering wing and elevator.

Ambroid and thread.

Wing: The nine ribs are bent slightly as shown in the end view of the wing, and their ends slightly split. A ladder-like frame is then constructed by wedging the 2 1/2" lengths of bamboo in the split ends of the ribs and ambroiding in place. This frame must be true in order to insure good flight.

The remaining piece of bamboo is next bent into a semi-circle over heat and split in half, forming two identical wing ends. The two ends are bound and ambroided to the ladder-like frame, and the wing frame is complete.

It should next be covered. A piece of paper is cut to larger size than the frame. The frame is painted in the center section with banana oil, and the center of the paper applied, carefully stretching it so as to remove creases.

The paper is then trimmed and the "furry" edges sealed with banana oil. Because the wing is so fragile, and on account of the paper being non-porous, no banana oil need be used on the wing. Always when not in use this wing should be laid on a flat surface in order that it may retain its true shape.

Elevator: The short bamboo edge of the elevator is bent to a "V" shape as shown in the perspective view. The longer piece is then bent with a flat section in its center and its ends rounded to form the wing tips. The two pieces should next be ambroided together as shown in the perspective view. The ribs are now curved and inserted in their proper places in the same manner as was used in constructing the wing. This elevator frame is next covered with tissue paper in the same fashion as the wings.

Assembly: The reason for having the front and rear edges different is in order that the elevator may present an angle to the line of flight, and thus raise the nose of the model.

Assembly: Fasten the wing and elevator to the fuselage by use of rubber bands looped under the fuselage sticks and over the wing and elevator surfaces. Adjust the wings to the approximate position shown in the assembled view.

Flying: Balance the model by casting it gently forward several times without previously winding the propellers in order to determine if it glides correctly. If it dives sharply move the wing or elevator or both slightly forward. If it climbs too rapidly move the surfaces backward. To launch, wind the rubbers fairly tight and hold the model over the head, and cast gently forward.

The next article: A dandy way to "crank" the motors of your models.

COMPOSITE BAND TO MAKE TRIP TO PARIS

Wisconsin will be represented by a composite band at the national convention of the American Legion in Paris this fall, state legionnaires decided at meetings Friday at the annual state convention at Marinette. Most of the money for the band has been raised and the remainder will be secured within a short time, it was reported.

However, the money will not take care of a 50-piece organization as has been planned and a cut is certain. The band probably will consist of 35 pieces.

Edward F. Mumm, chosen conductor of the band earlier in the year, attended the sessions. He is undecided at present whether he will make the trip because of the many complications concerning the band which have arisen in the last few months.

4-H CLUB GIRLS WILL GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS

De Pere—Baking and canning, two of the most useful arts, will be demonstrated by girls of 4-H Clubs under the leadership of Mrs. L. Hopkins at the Northeastern Wisconsin fair, here August 23 to Sept. 2.

The old practice of using a pinch of this and a dash of that is not approved by the girls who will bake bread by the fair. Every loaf of bread baked by these girls is made by exact rules. They have found that every ounce of flour, salt and other ingredients used in making the bread must be measured or a perfect loaf cannot be produced. They believe bread-making is a science which can be mastered in no other way.

The girls, dressed in neat uniforms made by themselves, will compete in daily demonstrations at the fair. Championships will be decided and $75 in prizes, offered by the fair, will be divided among the winners. Some of the winners may eventually qualify for the national championship to be staged at the International Live stock show in Chicago.

Another project to be demonstrated by school children will be sewing.

STAGE And SCREEN

"ANNIE LAURIE," LOVED IN SONG AND LEGEND, LIVES AGAIN IN LILLIAN GISH

Annie Laurie, beloved to the world for centuries in song and story, has come to life again—on the screen.

This is the latest role of Lillian Gish, queen of romantic drama, who enacts the historic Scottish heroine in her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, "Annie Laurie," the dramatic spectacle of the Scottish Highlands now playing at Fischer's Appleton Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

As the Scottish Joan of Arc, Miss Gish plays a role so totally different from any in her career that it seems amazing. As Annie Laurie, noblewoman and mistress of the great Maxwellton Castle—then as a woman, leaving the splendors of her own tribe-men to save the man she loves, she Principles of sewing as taught to the youngsters by experts in the schools will be demonstrated each day. In addition, a large number of articles made during the year will be on exhibit.

KING GEORGE PREFERS LAGER TO OTHER BEER

London —(P)— King George V greatly prefers lager beer to any other from of alcoholic beverage. The King's lager is brewed by an Edinburgh firm, and is supplied to no other table.

The King is known for being remarkably abstemious in diet. Lager beer, which after the war, was in considerable vogue in England as a summer beverage, is in less demand this year, probably because of the unseasonable coolness of the weather.

The sign is rectangular with a thick border and contains the text "BREAD IS A GOOD FOOD" in a bold, sans-serif font. The boy is standing to the right of the sign, looking at it with a slight smile. The background is simple, with some lines suggesting a fence or a path. The artist's signature "C. HOMERUN IN NINTH GIVES MENASHA VICTORY OVER LOCALS

Moundsman Wins Game In Final Frame With Homer With Three On

Four Homers too Much for Fighting Brautys to Overcome at Menasha Sunday

SUNDAY GAMES
 MENASHA 10, APPLETON 7.
 Kimberly 8, Oshkosh 4.
 Kaukauna, 12-15, Neshanic 2-5.

Lewandowski's long homer over the left field wall with the bases loaded and one down in the last half of the ninth inning, gave Menasha a 10-7 victory over the Appleton squad in a Fox River Valley League ball game at Menasha park Sunday afternoon and sent Appleton down to its third straight defeat in the loop and fifth place. The Brautys led, 7-6, when the fatal homer dropped out of sight over the wall.

Homers played a major factor in the Appleton defeat as the Falls gathered four, two coming with men on the sacks. They also added a double and triple, while only one Appleton hit went for more than a sack. Tornew's double. A few errors and inability of the outfielders to come up fast for long flies, taking them on the first bound, also aided Menasha. The game was close from start to finish with enough thrills to satisfy the fans, opening with Dombrowski's great catch of Baetz's short fly to right to start the first frame.

Three of the four Brautys featured the Fall attack though Dombrowski registered two hits in four bats and Zanevski, a triple. Powell and Lewandowski had a hit apiece, but each was a homer, the latter's doing the "dirty work" in the ninth. Jule Weisberger had three singles and a double and scored twice. George had two hits including a double, and John had three in four bats including two homers. Refke was hit for 15 safeties though a few were freaks and two were due to slow fielding by the outer gardeners. He walked two and batted four.

"Old man" Brautigan again showed the youngsters how to play ball for Appleton. He accepted five hard chances, many of them had bound hits, without a falter, and got two hits and a sacrifice fly in four trips to the plate. He also scored from a long single. Van Wyck got two hits in five bats and every other man, including Refke got a safety among the 11 local clouts. Ashman played his usual steady game behind the plate, picking runners off stealing and also starting the Brautys' relay. He failed with two on base. Zanevski was knocked out of the box by the locals.

Neither team scored in the first two frames, the only hit coming on G. Weisberger's double with two down. Appleton started the ball rolling in the third. Baetz took one of the short fly shots in the body and advanced to second on Refke's single to left, after Refke had fanned. Baetz drove a long single to center and Radtke scored. Refke taking second. Baetz and Refke moved up a notch on the same play when G. Weisberger, relieving the throw from center field to the plate in an attempt to get Radtke, shot over Powell's head. Ashman shot a long fly to left and Refke scored after the catch. Tornew went out to end the scoring.

Menasha came back with one in its half when John Weisberger singled, picked Refke's slowball over the left garden fence. With two down Jule Weisberger singled but failed to advance. Appleton added a run in the second, fourth. Van Wyck singled and stole second, going all the way to third when Powell's throw shot to the outfield. He scored on Brautys' sacrifice to center. In Neshanic's half G. Weisberger singled after Refke had fanned two batters. Joe was safe on Tornew's error. Then Ashman, with John the homerun hitter up, picked Joe off first and he was run down.

Major Clubs Buy Minor Teams To Develop Stars

BY BILLY EVANS

The scarcity of major league ball players in certain minor leagues has caused drastic action on the part of the magnates to remedy the situation. To my way of thinking there is only one answer to the solution, the owning by the big leagues of minor league clubs of various classifications, where promising material can be developed step by step. The St. Louis club of the National League is the first club to put this theory into practice. Branch Rickey, a smart baseball man, who has been connected with the game in practically every capacity, has successfully worked out the problem for the Cardinals. At the present time, the St. Louis system is composed of the Cardinals as the present club, with Syracuse in the International League, Houston in the Texas League, Danville in the Three-I League and Topeka in the Western Association. The great value of the system was proved beyond a doubt this spring, when Tommy Thevenow, star shortstop of the world champions, broke his leg. A hurried call was sent out for help. The Danville club was first to respond with Heinie Schulte, who was a Texas sandlotter this time last year. He fitted into the scheme nicely and, considering his limited experience, has played remarkably well. More than 100 ball players are owned directly and indirectly by the Cardinals through this system of parent club and sub-stations. A majority of these players are major league pros-

John Weisberger and Dombrowski, singled, the latter's a freebie to the box, and Smith sacrificed them a notch. With one down and two on, Refke jammed the heavyhitting Jule Weisberger and forced Powell to dribble a grounder to third. In the sixth Ashman opened with a single to center but was forced at second by Tornow. Tornow took second as Van Wyck was thrown out at first and third on Brautys' hit over second. He scored on the second baseman muffed the ball on a return peg from the outfield. It was a lucky seventh for Menasha and it wiped out Appleton's three-run lead. With one down John Weisberger got his second homer and Dombrowski followed with a double to the leftfield fence. Smith hit a low fly over third and Hillman caught it on the bound, after he had tried to catch Refke's caught Dombrowski off second and pegged to third to get him, but Schultz muffed the throw and Dombrowski scored. Smith was picked off going to third on the play by a peg from Hillman, who backed third on the fumble. To Schultz, Jule Weisberger singled to center and took second when Van Wyck allowed the ball to escape him. Powell's homer scored both men. Zanevski tripped to center and came in when Schultz let Lewandowski's easy grounder trickle past. G. Weisberger ended the misery by Popping to Schultz.

TAKE LEAD AGAIN

Appleton came back in the first of the eighth with three runs to take a 7-6 lead. After Ashman had gone out, Tornow doubled and took third on Van Wyck's single. Van stole second and both men scored on Brautys' long single to center. Hillman singled and Refke singled to center and took second when Van Wyck allowed the ball to escape him. Powell's homer scored both men. Zanevski tripped to center and came in when Schultz let Lewandowski's easy grounder trickle past. G. Weisberger ended the misery by Popping to Schultz.

OSHKOSH MATCH, 42-22

Golfers of Butte des Moris Country club kept their interclub match slate still unmarred for the season Saturday afternoon when they had no trouble trouncing the Oshkosh Country club stars at the Oshkosh course. The final score was 42-22. The men played 18 holes, with the Nassau system in force.

PACKER GRIDDER SOLD

TO CINCINNATI REDS

Seattle—Sale of Everett (Fid) Purdy, leading outfielder of the Seattle Pacific Coast League club, to the Cincinnati Reds, was announced Saturday night. In addition to an unannounced cash consideration, Seattle will receive a player from the Reds in return for the centerfielder, who will report to Cincinnati before Aug. 31. Purdy came to Seattle this year from the Chicago White Sox. He is a quarterback on the Green Bay Packer professional grid squad.

COOKES INCREASE VALLEY LOOP LEAD

Kimberly Squad Comes from Behind to Trounce Oshkosh Ballers, 8-4

Kimberly—Kimberly gained ground in the race for the Fox River Valley League flag, and brought its lead over the second-place Green Sox's to two and a half games here Sunday afternoon, when the leaders romped over Oshkosh, 8-4.

The battle was close up to the sixth inning when Kimberly came from behind to take the game by bringing in three runs. Oshkosh's "lucky" inning was the fourth when it scored all four of its runs.

Roy Smith was the swat king of the day, having a perfect record at bat. He had a double and two singles, and a sacrifice hit in four trips to the plate. Bixby of Oshkosh got three singles in four times up.

Both squads used two twirlers, Oshkosh switching from Gietzen to Noel in the third and Kimberly from Roehrick to "Boots" Lamers in the fourth. Kimberly collected six hits and four runs off Noel while Lamers held the Sawdust city crew scatters for four scattered hits. All ten Oshkosh batters were singles.

M. Lamers, second man up, started things humming in Kimberly's half of the first frame by clouting to center for a three bagger. R. Smith singled to center, bringing Lamers in. L. Thein tripped to center registering Smith, and giving the local two-run lead to which it added one in the third. L. Smith spanked a drive to the right field wall for a three bagger and M. Lamers sacrificed to center.

Then came Oshkosh's big inning in which it tied the score, and chalked up one extra. Horejes, second man up, walked to first and Hackbarth was hit by a pitched ball. Weed hit along the first baseline to right field and Horejes and Hackbarth scored. Bixby singled to left, and Weed scored. Noel brought in Bixby with a single to center.

Kimberly took the lead in the sixth when R. Smith doubled to left and registered on T. Lamers' double to left. L. Thein walked to first and Lamers and Thein scored when Schell spanked a drive to the left field fence. Schell reached third but was tagged out for failing to touch the keystone safely.

In the eighth, R. Smith singled to left. L. Thein hit to right, and Smith went to third and scored on Cooke's single. Thein advanced to third and Cooke to second, on a passed ball. Thein scored on Schell's sacrifice.

CHAMPION MEYERS WILL TOUR STATE

Middleweight Mat Tillist to Give Wisconsin Men Chance at Crown

Chicago—As a preliminary step toward attaining perfect physical fitness for the coming season's ring activities, Johnny Meyers, world middleweight champion wrestler has announced that he plans a tour of the nearby states during the month of September. Meyers has agreed to meet all comers for a limited period of time and offers a nice reward to all who may succeed in sticking it out by keeping their shoulders off the canvas until time is called.

Meyers has taken quite a lay-off from active participation in mat activities since the close of last season, more so than at any time in the past since he gained the world crown. He is going to meet the world crown in the near future without undergoing a long and arduous training period to regain the knack of leverage and above all to test his powers of endurance and strength.

Manager White advises promoters who care to take advantage of the champion's services during this tour, to do so by at once making their wishes known and also the opponent they may decide on. The duration of the time limit for the bouts has not yet been decided on, nor the amount of prize money. The opponents will receive. Tentatively the time limit which the pair appear to favor thus far is for one half in 45 minutes or two straight in one hour of milling. It may be that a different period will be set for certain opponents.

QUALIFYING ROUND OPENS IN NATIONAL

Bobby Jones, Von Elm, Big Favorites to Battle for 1927 Title

Minneapolis—(AP)—Golfdom centered its attention Monday on the nearly 200 amateurs gathered at the Minnesota Golf and Country Club for the opening round of the National Amateur championship and especially on the designs of George Von Elm of Los Angeles, title holder, and Bobby Jones of Atlanta, who lost the crown to the westerner last year.

While the men neither of whom had been defeated in the event by anyone except the other of the twain are favorites for finalists, a third successive time, the art of putting a rubber pellet into a wee cup with a crooked stick from all distances, angles and situations is not so easy a game as it seems. The first round of the qualifying round of the National Amateur championship, and especially on the designs of George Von Elm of Los Angeles, title holder, and Bobby Jones of Atlanta, who lost the crown to the westerner last year.

There were 173 sterling players listed to start the medal round Monday to four club for the first time. Jimmy Johnston, leader for two rounds in the National open, playing on his home course, Francis Ouimet of Boston, Bob Gardner and Chick Evans of Chicago, William C. Fownes and Dave Harron of Pittsburgh and Max Marston of Philadelphia, all former champions, were such names as there were also a score of state and regional titleholders. If Sunday's trial round had been kept from Jones, for playing together in a foursome, the Californian scored par 72, despite the penalty strokes, and defeated the Atlantan, one up.

BADGER CENTER WILL COACH AT STOUGHTON

Madison—Harry McAndrews and Earl Walker, two young Wisconsin athletes, have chosen to enter the coaching profession and will assume new positions in the state this fall. McAndrews, one of the freshmen coaches at Wisconsin last fall and former Badger halfback, will become the director of athletics at Kaukauna high school. Wilke, center on last fall's eleven, will coach the grid team at Stoughton high school.

COLLEGE GRIDDER SCHOLASTIC STAR

Rapuna, Old Cornell Athlete, Is Awarded $7,000 Rome Scholarship

BY BOB MATHERNE
 Rapuna recently was awarded the Prix de Rome, a $7,000 scholarship entitling him to study landscape architecture for three years at the American Academy in Rome.

Gilmour Doble, who coached Rapuna, seems not a bit surprised that he won the scholarship.

"Like is one of those fellows hard to beat," comments Doble. "When he played for me, he weighed only 160 pounds, but more than held his own against some of the best centers in the country. The same qualities that made him a good football player enabled him to win in the grueling competition for the Prix de Rome."

Rapuna lives in Syracuse, N. Y., and is the son of Italian immigrant parents. He is 23 years old.

George W. Philbrook, who played football with Knute Rockne at Notre Dame many years ago, has decided not to aid Rockne as an assistant coach this year. Philbrook turned down an offer from Notre Dame in order to accept a post at Whitlaker College, in California. Philbrook left Idaho to accept the Whitlaker position.

Southern teams are already booking interseasonal opponents for their 1928 grid schedules. Loyola, an New Orleans school, is going to meet Notre Dame in South Bend and Alabama has practically closed for a game with Wisconsin at Madison. Other teams in Dixie are seeking games with northern and eastern opponents.

SPORT DOPE TAKES MANY FUNNY TWISTS

Five Months Ago Macks and Bucs Chosen to Win; Dempsey Odds Shifted

New York—(AP)—The dope takes many a strange twist in sports. Only a few months ago the Athletics and Pirates were odds on favorites to win the major league pennant races. But with little more than a month to go the Athletics are out of the running while the slugger Yankees have a lead in the race for a world or an earthquake can upset.

The Pirates are not out of it but their chances of pulling through have lessened as the Chicago Cubs have set a convincing pace. If the Cubs win it will be the biggest dose upset in the National League since the muscle team of Boston Braves swept to the top in 1914.

Jack Dempsey was a 3 to 1 favorite to trim Gene Tunney last September, but with their return fight exactly a month off, the odds are 2 to 1 shot to repeat his victory.

DEMPEY LOOKS OVER NEW QUARTERS MONDAY

Chicago—(AP)—The thud of leather covered fists will replace the thud of iron shod hoofs at the Lincoln Fields race track this week when Jack Dempsey and his sparring partners get into action there.

Dempey sound up his brief vacation before settling down to training, with a visit to the theatre Sunday night with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor, Tex Rickard and a small party of friends.

IRV PETERSON BREAKS COURSE MARK WITH 69

Milwaukee—(AP)—Playing over the Racine County tournament on the 4,500 yard Brown Lake golf course Sunday, Irving Peterson of Racine set a new course record, bagging nine birdies for a count of 69. The course par is 74 and the former record held by Eddie Looze of Chicago was 72.

Johnny Doe of Santa Monica has been named an alternate for the United States Davis cup team, and may get stake part in the matches should anything happen to members of the chosen team. Doe's play in eastern meets this season has bordered on the sensational.

PIRATES GAIN HALF GAME ON IDLE CUBS

Three Rivals in National Loop Within Six Games of Chicago's Hope

New tension has been injected into an interesting baseball race in the National League. The Chicago Cubs were in first place Monday by a margin on only three games over the Pittsburgh Pirates. St. Louis, in third place, was only 4½ games away from the leaders and the New York Giants, standing fourth, spotted the Bums a 5½ game margin. Despite the fact that the schedule favors the inspired Cubs, there are many possibilities ahead in the final stretch.

The Giants and Pirates both gained on the Cubs Sunday. New York took both ends of a double header from Cincinnati. The scores were 9-8 and 6-1.

Pittsburgh pulled a game out of the fire from the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2-1. Wright's timely clout in the ninth sent Kild Cuyler across the plate with the winning run.

Cleveland made it two straight from the Yankees, Hudlin rescuing Buckeye in the fourth inning and coming through for a 7-4 victory. It was the third straight defeat for the Yankees. Babe Ruth played only one inning and after he had singled, he retired, saying he had hurt his back.

The Detroit Tigers strengthened their hold on second place in the American league standing by beating Washington, 11-4. Philadelphia batted three White Sox pitchers hard to gain an 8-6 decision.

St. Louis and the Boston Red Sox met in the Mound City in an argument over last place. The Browns got into the 400 club by winning both ends of a double header 5-0 and 4-3 and chilled Boston hopes of ever getting out of the cellar.

OSHKOSH GIRL LOSES IN GOLF MEET FINAL

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Harry Pressler of Los Angeles was homebound Monday with another golfing championship for the west, the Women's Western title, which she captured at Lake Geneva.

Mrs. Pressler defeated Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, 5 and 4 in the 36-hole final Saturday. Unknown to tournament golf except in the west, Mrs. Pressler played the steady game of a veteran all day. She outdrove Miss Wall 20 to 60 yards at each tee and Miss Wall's usually steady short game deserted her.

LAVVIE DILWEG TO PLAY WITH PACKERS

Marquette All-American End Plays With Flaherty, Old Teammate

Green Bay—Dreams of a national championship pro football eleven for Green Bay have come a step nearer reality through the announcement that Lavvie Dilweg, one of the greatest ends of all time, has come to terms with the Green Bay management.

Ever since Johnny Bryan told the moguls of the National Football league during their session here last month that his Milwaukee Badgers would not exercise their franchise rights this season in the pro wheel, the Packers have been after the former Marquette All-American.

O' first it looked like a fruitless chase, as the Chicago Bears, New York Giants and Philadelphia Yellow Jackets were hot after him. Anyway, Packer officials put in their bid to Bryan and made it a stiff one.

Negotiations with Bryan were closed a few days ago, and it didn't take long then to get set with Dilweg and have his name on the dotted line. Like Red Dunn, his former teammate at Marquette, Dilweg remarked while signing his contract that "Green Bay was one place he always wanted to play football."

There is a possibility that Dilweg may locate here permanently, providing negotiations now under way with a prominent Green Bay law firm are concluded satisfactorily.

Aside from two or three possibly three more player announcements to be made public within the next ten days, the Packer squad of 1927, which, on paper, looks bigger and better than any team that ever sported the gold and blue, is about completed.

The battle front, as it now stands, is as follows: Centers—Karp, Monmouth; Darling, Deloit. Guards—Woodin, Marquette; Jones, Alabama. Ends—O'Donnell, Minnesota; Tuttle, Minnesota; Flaherty, Marquette; Dilweg, Marquette.

Backs—Capt. Lambeau, Notre Dame; Kotul, Lawrence; Purdy, Beloit; Dunn, Marquette; Jackson, Missouri; Hearden, Notre Dame; Lidberg, Minnesota; Umricht, Notre Dame.

KIMBERLY, KAUKAUNA WIN VALLEY BATTLES

Kimberly—The league leading Kimberly team defeated Oshkosh here Sunday in a Fox River Valley league game. The win put Kimberly two full games ahead of the second place Green Bay squad, which was idle.

SMITH GETS 3
 Kaukauna's Smith took both ends of a double header from Neshanic here Sunday in Fox River Valley league frays, winning the first by a 12 to 2 count and the second by a score of 12 to 5 in a seven inning affair.

Gertz, local pitcher, hurled both games allowing the Neshanic squad but four hits in the opener and eight in the night cap. Smith, Kaukauna manager, continued his home run spree by getting three four baggers and a double in the first fray. In the second game he got one hit and was passed twice.

Use Huddle System

Coach Lou Young intends having the Penn football team use the huddle system this fall.

IRVING ZUEHLKE

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

"Oh, no, no, no!" cried Bambi. "Garabaldi him nice-a bear! He no eat-a little-a girl!" "Ev'body git their guns!" shouted Elam Frye. "Here's a great chance to have a bear hunt!" In a moment men were galloping off in all directions for firearms. "Oh, you no let-a them shoot-a Garabaldi!" cried Bambi to the sheriff. "I don't see any way to stop 'em," he answered.

Out of the houses into which they had rushed came the villagers, bearing rifles and shotguns. "We'll catch the dago, too," said one of the armed men.

Elam Frye returned with a heavy saw-toothed bear-trap in his possession. "Nate Turner shot his old hoss in the woods yesterday," said Frye. "He ain't buried the critter yet, and I'm goin' to set this trap nigh where the dead hoss is." Lockwill's eyes blazed. "You're a miserable, cold-blooded, venomous old wretch!" he told Frye. at Meeting on City Street
Corner

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Taking of Salvation Army workers who were holding a meeting on the corner of Wolf River and S. Pearl-st., on Saturday evening, Jack Kearns rose to remonstrate. To all and sundry he intimated in loud and glowing terms that salvation was not for him, and for that reason it was for no one. "Down with salvation," stated Mr. Kearns, "also down with liquor." He struck poses which were intended to be impressive but which ended quite disastrously, due to the unsteadiness of the orator's legs. Night Patrolman Stearns' rival put an end to the objector's tirade and he was put to bed at the city jail. Kearns pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5 and costs Monday morning before Police Justice Fred Archibald.

The latter's car received fewer damages than did that driven by Coberson. He was lodged in the city jail. FIRE SET TO SMOKE
OUT BEES DESTROYS
TEN ACRES OF HAY

New London—The spread of a fire set to smoke out a hustling family of bumblebees in a marshy field near Northport on Saturday destroyed considerable hay and caused the loss of valuable timber. The fire started on the land owned by Morris Wilson, Northport farmer, and while frantic workers of the haying crew fought to hold it in check, it spread over about ten acres, burning standing hay and hay stacks. Back fires set by the men saved the timberland and the marshes to the south and east, and a fortunate turn of the wind caused the flames to spread themselves in a willow swale to the north.

High clouds of smoke attracted a great many from this city, and the extreme dryness of the lowlands just now added to the danger. The fire, starting soon after noon, burned for several hours before the danger was past.

THE OLD WAY—AND THE NEW

SIMON TO APPEAR BEFORE JUDGE IN COURT ON MONDAY

Appleton's "Millionaire Kid" Was to Undergo Questioning Regarding Details

Nic Simon, Jr., known as Appleton's "millionaire kid," former head of the Simon Cheese company of this city which failed with a reported loss of more than $50,000, was to appear before Judge Edgar V. Worner in circuit court here Monday afternoon for questioning.

Simon had been subpoenaed at his home in Chicago and it is understood he is to be questioned regarding alleged irregularities in reporting assets of the cheese company, which is in bankruptcy. William H. Zuehlke, former postmaster and now treasurer of the Aid Association for Lutherans, is the receiver in the proceedings.

One Appleton bank was reported to have lost $65,000 through the operations of the company and many small cheese companies in this vicinity were either crippled or put out of business.

The Simon Cheese company was organized shortly before the war in Chicago and it is alleged that Simon used in small packages. The company did no manufacturing but purchased the output of about 20 nearby factories.

SOLD STOCK FREELY

For two years it did a thriving business, increasing its capital stock to $100,000 to extend its field. It had a big contract with a large Chicago packing house, which, it is alleged, repudiated the agreement in the latter part of 1919. As most of its transactions were with that concern, the business dwindled rapidly. The contract was for 12,000,000 pounds of cheese on a cost-plus basis at a price 1 cent over the Plymouth market.

From then on the company was said to have had an increasingly difficult time. At that time it was engaged in an expansion program, and had obtained the authority of the state railroad commission to increase its capital stock to $400,000.

The company finally became insolvent and was forced into bankruptcy.

SENTENCED TO PRISON

A grand jury investigated the company and Simon was held for trial. He was sentenced to two years in federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., following his plea of guilty to indictments charging conspiracy to use the mails to defraud. It was alleged that he had falsified his financial reports to the railroad commission in order to secure permission to sell more stock.

Simon was sentenced to two years on each of 32 counts on which he was indicted, making a total of 64 years, but the sentences were ordered to run concurrently.

In 1925, shortly after his release from prison, Simon purchased a cheese factory at Wittenberg.

Request numbers telephoned to Mr. Mumm's home between 5 and 7 o'clock Monday evening will be played at the concert. Selections which have the largest numbers of requests will be given precedence on the concert program if there are too many to be played.

The program is being held Monday evening instead of Tuesday, the usual day, because the band will play at the Seymour Fair Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

CHICAGO MAN FINED FOR BEATING SPOUSE

Local Woman Faces Trial for Assisting in Attack Upon Mrs. Louis Bergman

Louis Bergman of Chicago, paid a fine of $50 and costs in municipal court here Monday morning after pleading guilty to a charge of assault and battery and Miss Agnes Toonen, 529 E. McKinley-st., must stand trial Monday afternoon on the same charge. Mrs. Bergman is the complainant in both cases.

Mrs. Bergman, with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert J. Bergman, of Chicago, drove to Appleton Saturday seeking the "wayward" husband.

"I was suspicious," Mrs. Bergman Monday morning told George T. Prim, chief of police. "I went to a local hotel and found my husband registered there. In the lobby I saw him with a woman. I don't want a divorce and asked him to come with me and leave her. They went outside where he started to beat me and she helped him. They beat me as I walked south on Appleton-st and I am black and blue and can show the marks of the attack."

"This affair has been going on for a year and a half," Mrs. Bergman said. "I have letters that she wrote to my husband on stationery from the office where she is employed. She chases my husband all over. Last week we were at Marquette, Mich., and she took a train from Appleton and arrived in Marquette early Sunday morning. She came right to our hotel and awakened my husband. I don't want a divorce but I wish she would only leave him alone and let me have a good talk with him. But she keeps chasing him around and won't give him a moment's peace."

Mrs. Bergman swore out warrants for Mr. Bergman and for Miss Toonen on a charge of assault and battery and on a charge of harboring a fugitive. John Deitgen, Mr. Bergman's attorney, pleaded guilty when arraigned Monday morning in municipal court.

"I don't care to dwell on this case," Judge Berg told the defendant, "but your action has been reprehensible. I fine you $50 and costs." The fine was paid immediately. Miss Toonen pleaded not guilty and bonds of $100 were furnished by Bergman. She was to be tried Tuesday afternoon.

FRANK SAYS CHEMIST WILL HELP FARMERS

University President Predicts They Will Find New Uses for Waste Products

Tisch Mills—Three thousand picknickers in Kracht's woods Sunday afternoon heard Glen Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin predict that the chemist in his laboratory would help to solve the problem of relief for farmers by the discovery of new uses for their principal and waste products in manufacture. Pres. Frank also said that unless farmers develop leadership in their own ranks and adopt methods of production and distribution of the manufacturers and business men, their farms within 50 years would pass from their hands to landholders and they would be working for wages on farms.

There are two kinds of farm relief, the short term and permanent relief, according to Pres. Frank. He does not object to short term relief if it presupposes the adoption of long term relief afterwards. Politicians, quacks and legislators cannot furnish permanent relief to farmers. Without considering production, permanent relief for agriculture depends on a scheme of cooperative marketing, a system of education for farm leadership and the harnessing of the factory and agriculture.

"The university can serve in this new educational development and I promise you what it can do it will do," said Pres. Frank. "With our chemists at work, we ought to find out what new uses can be made of farm products five years in advance of other countries."

Other speakers on the program were F. C. Cornica, sales manager of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation, P. G. Swoboda, manager of the federation and F. L. Kozel, president of the Two Rivers Cooperative Storage Company, a unit of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers Federation.

The picnic was put on by the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation and was sponsored by the Two Rivers Storage Company. R. R. Smith, agricultural agent of the Wisconsin Cooperative Storage Company, assisted in planning the picnic and working out the details.

The picnic is the beginning of a drive for obtaining new units in the cooperative marketing of cheese.
